THE HANGING OF TOM JONES.

WAKE MURDERER PAYS PENALTY.

The Murderer Was Calm and of Course Got Full Forgiveness—Made a Full Confession of the Deed in Which Six Persons Were Murdered—The Story of the Murder and Jones' Confession—Two Thousand Applications for Admission.

Special Dispatch to The Telegram.

Raleigh, Aug. 31.—Tom Jones, who murdered his paramour, Ella Jones and five children, was privately hanged here this morning. He slept well last night, but ate no breakfast. Only one negro went to see him while in jail. This is the woman who yesterday prayed and sang for him. Over two thousand persons made applications for admission to the hanging, but only thirty-six were admitted, among them four physicians.

Jones said nothing on the gallows. He confessed yesterday. At his request Father Griffin spoke for him, thanking all who had done him kindness and saying he died asking pardon. He was perfectly cool and never trembled. The drop fell at 10:29. The drop was six and a half feet. The neck was broken, yet he struggled greatly. Physicians pronounced him dead at 10:43. He had sold his body for ten dollars to the negro medical college.

THE MURDERER'S LAST HOURS.

Your correspondent went in the jail here yesterday afternoon to see Tom Jones, the murderer, and see how he bore his fate. He was in good spirits and was the brightest of all the many prisoners. On entering the jail the tones of the voice of a woman at prayer were heard. The doorway of the jail was framed with black faces, outsiders, who wanted to see and hear. On entering there was a buzz among the packed mass of black prisoners, lined up in front of the long cell tiers. They were hushed, and the prayer again was heard. It came from the lips of a black woman, dressed all in black, and when she finished it she bagan a song, a hymn, in a high key, and in a most saddening note. She was at the rear of the cell tiers, and there in a separte cell was Jones and two other prisoners with death staring them in the face. It was a scene to be remembered. Jones, small of stature, with a pure African nose and mouth, high-pitched head, with a chin tuft of hair as crisp and tightly curled as that on his head; his hands holding a paper, into which fruit and candy was being passed. Beside him towered Tom Smith, a mulatto under death sentence for cutting the throat of a man in Johnston county, and on the other side was a sullen-looking black man, here for safe keeping and against whom lies the dreadful charge of rape in Cumberland county. There was a pause in the song while this quick look was taken and when Jones was asked how he was getting on, he replied, "I'm getting on tolerably well, thank you." His thick lips almost murmured the words. "He's all ready to go," said his fellow prisoners. He prays every night. The priest has just left him." The woman who prayed and sang to him was the first person of his race to visit him during all his stay in jail. Last night the death watch was set, and he was placed in a separate cell.

STORY OF THE CRIME

The crime for which Jones paid with his life the well-merited penalty today was committed early in the night of March 22d last. His six victims lived in a cabin on the outskirts of Garner village, six miles southeast of Raleigh. The crime was the worst on record in this State.

On the night in question two little negro girls, Laura, aged 7, and Sidney, aged 4, appeared suddenly at the house of a white woman who lives a few hundred yards from this cabin. Laura had her sister by the hand. Both were bloody. Spots of blood were on their faces and their clothing, and Laura told a story of blood. She said that "Mr. Preacher" had killed her mother and her oldest sister with an axe and had then set fire to the beds and left the house; that he had taken her sister from a bed and fled with her.

DEMOCOGUES ARE REBUKED.

THE BAPTISTS ADOPT RESOLUTIONS.

The Piedmont Association, in Session in This City, Considers Further Discussion of the Race Issue Unnecessary and Harmful—Editor Bailey Commended—Orphanage Discussed—Election of Officers and Other Miscellaneous Business.

The Piedmont Baptist Association met in Cherry Street Baptist church last evening at 8 o'clock. The introductory sermon was preached by Rev. Thomas Carrick, of High Point.

After the sermon the Association was organized. Mr. R. W. Brooks was re-elected moderator. Judge W. H. Eller and Mr. W. W. Workman were elected secretary and treasurer, respectively.

The Association met again this morning at 9 o'clock, devotional exercises being conducted by Rev. J. R. Miller, of Thomasville.

After some miscellaneous business had been transacted the report on periodicals was submitted. Mr. J. W. Bailey, editor of the Biblical Recorder, was introduced and made a very strong speech on "The Mission of a Religious Paper." Several speeches were made highly commending the Recorder.

The following resolution was introduced and unanimously adopted:

"Whereas, The Baptists of North Corolina are making an earnest effort for the improvement of the religious condition of the colored people of the State, and

Whereas, The discussion of the race question in political campaigns, by engendering prejudice and bitterness, is a hindrance to the work we, as a Christian denomination, are doing among the negroes, and

Whereas, We consider the race question settled politically in North Carolina and its further discussion unnecessary and harmful, therefore be it

"Resolved, That we most heartily commend the course of the editor of the Recorder in protesting against the discussion of the race question in the approaching campaign."

Next came the discussion of the orphanage. Rev. J. B. Boone, general manager of the Thomasville Orphanage, was present and told of the great work this institution was doing.

COL. MOREHEAD NOMINATED.

Given a Boost For United States Senator—Scion of an Illustrious Family.

Col. James T. Morehead is about to be pushed, without being consulted in any way, into the vortex of politics. Without any previous suggestion or warning, he has been mentioned as a most suitable man for United Senator, and the claims which are put forward in support of his candidacy are both strong and just. In the course of a communication in the Union Republican the level-headed Capt. W. H. Snow, of High Point, says of him:

"The State of North Carolina could do herself great honor by sending to the Senate Col. James T. Morehead, of Guilford, a scion of the most illustrious family in the history of the State. His ancestors were patriots and statesmen—co-workers with the immortal Clay and Webster. Those were days when North Carolina had influence in the halls of Congress.

"The name of Morehead is synonymons with sound money and protection to American industry.

"Every man in North Carolina would know he had a friend in the Senate, and our bonds would advance 10 per cent, in less than thirty days after the name of Morehead was entered on the rolls of the Senate.

"The genial Colonel's friends recognize the truth and the force of the above and are for entering him in the race. Place his name on the list of eligibles.

Why the Increase?

To the Editor of the Telegram:

I notice a notice in The Telegram yesterday of the phenomenal growth of the tombstone business in Greensboro. With hog pens to poison the citizens, how can it be otherwise? I suppose the demand for tombstones is in proportion to the increased number of deaths, or it may be, when we get census report we will see that it is the wonderful increase of population. Which, what or how is it? R. K. G.

[Probably the outside world has helped the business above mentioned to grow.—The Telegram.]

UNITED STATES AND RUSSIA.

ONLY TWO NATIONS ACT TOGETHER

Waiting for Responses From Other Powers—Germany Has Refused, France Is Holding Aloof and Great Britain Is Omniously Silent—The Troops to Be Withdraw and Negotiations Begun.

By Wire to The Telegram.

Washington, Aug. 31.—Reports are current that a serious split has occurred in the Cabinet. Hay is said to be at outs with the President over the latter's position on the Chinese question, hence the secretary's retirement into New Hampshire. It is freely stated that the pro-Russian policy was only decided upon after a most strenuous opposition by Hay. It is stated that when the latter found he could not hope to stay events, he retired from the scene.

It is a fact that all the latest negotiations have been transmitted through the assistant secretary on the plea of illness thrown out by the Administration, but it is known here that Hay is not ill at all.

Despite all reports to the contrary, Russia is the only country unequivocally with this country. Great Britain maintains an ominous silence. Germany has positively refused to agree. France is holding aloof. Other nations have not been heard from.

The Russian plan, as accepted by the United States, is simply to recognize Li Hung Chang as the representative of the Chinese government, accede to his wish to withdraw the troops from Pekin, let the imperial household return, and begin negotiations for the settlement of difficulties.

INJURED BY AN ELEVATOR.

Mr. Womble Takes a Wild Ride at the Merchants Grocery Company's Store.

Mr. W. C. Womble, an employe of the Merchants Grocery Company, had a thrilling experience with an elevator this afternoon, narrowly escaping serious injury. He had loaded the elevator on the fourth floor and had started down, when the rope by which the brake is controlled broke. The elevator descended to the ground floor with great rapidity, Mr. Womble suffering painful, though not serious injury. His face struck the third floor, making a bad bruise.

Mr. Womble was alone on the elevator, which was lightly loaded.

Rev. H. W. Smith at Home.

Rev. Hay Watson Smith arrived from Little Rock, Ark., last night and will spend two or three weeks with relatives in Greensboro. He has given up the pastorate of the church at Little Rock of which he has had charge for some time.

It has been understood that Mr. Smith would withdraw from the Presbyterian church, but The Telegram is informed that he has not yet taken this step.

Change in Hotel Management.

Mr. W. M. Jordan, formerly of the McAdoo House, but for the past year proprietor of the Carrollton Hotel, Raleigh, has given up his lease on the hotel. He is succeeded by Mr. C. T. Bennet, of Wilmington.

Mr. Jordan is a hotelist of considerable experience and has been successful in business.

Meeting With Success.

The Greensboro Table Company is meeting with great success. Though yet a young concern, its goods are being shipped as far from home as Bluefield, W. Va., and Jacksonville, Fla. The company yesterday contracted to furnish the lecture rooms of the Central Business College.

Shooting Bats and Violating the Law.

The sport of shooting bats is furnishing amusement to many people in Greensboro these evenings. The sport is all right, provided the law is not disobeyed by shooting inside the city limits. Some have been doing this and complaint has been made to the officers. Warrants were secured today for several young men who were seen shooting inside the corporate limits yesterday evening.

LOOTING GOES MERRILY ON.

ALL EXCEPT AMERICANS ENGAGED

Foreigners and Members of the Relieving Forces Quarreling at Each Other—The Latter Accuse the Foreigners of Sending Out Alarmist Statements and Say They Could Have Held Out Longer.

By Wire to the Telegram.

Taku, Aug. 31.—There is much recrimination between the foreigners beseiged at Pekin and members of the relieving forces. The officers accuse the foreigners in the city of sending out alarmist reports, and say that their condition was never so bad as the official dispatches represented, and assert that the foreigners could have held out indefinitely. On the other hand the foreigners accuse the generals of timidity, and say they might have marched and saved them much sooner with a smaller force.

The looting of Pekin proceeds industriously, and the Americans are ridiculed for observing the order of abstention from doing this.

THE POSTAL GROWING.

The Telegraph Line Between Washington and Atlanta—Greensboro to be an Important Station.

Mr. Wade Leonard, manager of the Postal Telegraph and Cable Company's Greensboro office, tells The Telegram that the new direct cable between the United States and Germany, the laying of which has just been completed, is the first direct cable line to be operated between this country and Germany. It is owned by the Commercial Cable and Telegraph Company, which has a connection with the Postal.

The Postal's line between Danville, Va., and Washington, D. C., Mr. Leonard says, will soon be in operation. This will be a part of the company's main line between Washington and Atlanta, and will make an important station of Greensboro.

THEIR CAPACITY DOUBLED.

And the Guilford Roller Mills Are Making Better Flour.

Another of Greensboro's manufacturing concerns has found it necessary to enlarge its plant. This time it is the Guilford Roller Mills Company. A machinist from Statesville was here yesterday to put the finishing touches on a lot of new machinery, which the company has just installed. Today the wheels are humming, turning out a higher grade of flour than could be made with the old machinery, and twice as much of it. The new flour is "Our Best," and is said to be of the very highest grade.

The Telegram is always glad to note the growth of Greensboro's manufacturing enterprises, and congratulates the Guilford Roller Mills on their success.

A NEW Y. W. C. T. M.

A Small Union Organized at Grace Church Last Night.

Unfortunately only a small crowd was present at Grace M. P. church last evening to hear Mrs. T. G. Cozart's excellent talk, but those who attended came away fully repaid. Mrs. Cozart, who is State secretary of the Y. W. C. T. M., is a born leader of young people, and one of the most pleasing lady speakers in the State. She spoke last night from Psalms xiv:4 and her talk, though short, contained much beautiful thought, beautifully expressed.

Following Mrs. Cozart, Mrs. J. E. Cartland made a short talk, after which a Young Woman's Union was organized, and the white ribbon was pinned on several of those present. Miss Eunice Darden was made president, and Miss Weatherly vice-president of the Union. The other offices were left open.

Will Reside in Greensboro.

Winston Sentinel.

Mrs. Swift Hooper went to Mocksville this afternoon to spend a few weeks with her parents. She and her husband have discontinued housekeeping here. They will board in Greensboro. Mr. Hooper is engineer for the Southern, running one of the freight trains between Winston and Greensboro.

THE HISTORY OF ALAMANCE.

MISS STOCKARD'S GOOD WORK.

A Valuable Contribution to the History of North Carolina, Dealing With Events and People Who Had Much to Do With Shaping the Destiny of State and Nation. A Region Rich in Historical Research Since the Day When the Red Man Roamed the Hills—A Pioneer People.

North Carolina is as rich in noble deeds of daring men as Scotland. The knowledge of what Scotchmen endured and availed was an incentive to the Scotch. It also gave them self-confidence, less to fear in seeming failure, and a long look ahead. So may it be to us.

The above are the words of the first paragraph of the first chapter of Miss Sallie W. Stockard's "History of Alamance." No thinking North Carolinian, upon reflection, can fail to recognize their truth and force. And yet how few seemingly believe the statement. The reason North Carolina, which is a Commonwealth rich in history, is not known as such is because no poets have sung of her grandeur, no historians have preserved in imperishable form the story of the daring deeds of her valiant sons. Poets have not sung and historians have not written because of scant appreciation and encouragement here at home.

But light is breaking. Here and there a patriotic and devoted North Carolinian has delved into the dim past and rescued from oblivion a bright page of North Carolina history to adorn and uplift the life of the State. May their number multiply and the people awake to a realization of their own and a full appreciation of these self-sacrificing guardians of a glorious past!

One of the most indefatigable workers in behalf of North Carolina history is Miss Sallie W. Stockard, of Alamance county, a truly gifted woman. With a burning love for her State and an abiding faith in her people, she has spent endless time and labor in an effort to revive and perpetuate the memory of events which influenced greatly the destiny, not only of the State, but of the nation, and in preserving the biographies of some of the leaders of those times.

In her "History of Alamance," issued only a few weeks ago, she has done much in this direction. It is a most valuable work, deserving of a hearty reception at the hands of all the people of North Carolina. It was for this work that the author was granted the degree of M. A. at the University of North Carolina, she being the first woman upon whom the University conferred this degree.

In the beginning of the book is given an account of the Indians, the early settlers and land owners of the section now embraced in the county of Alamance. They roamed the lovely, sloping hills between Stinking Quarter and Big Alamance, Governor Morehead's Eden, and christened the water courses Altamahaw, Ossipee, Saxapahaw and Alamance. Following this is a brief chronicle of the first white men, true and brave, to settle here—those liberty loving patriots who were the first to shed blood for American independence. The story of the war of the Regulators and the battles of Alamance and Lindley's Mill is told in an interesting and concise manner.

Several pages are devoted to the early churches and schools of Alamance, showing that the sturdy people of this county were also pioneers in religion and education. Several other interesting subjects are handled, one chapter being devoted to "Cotton Manufacturing in Alamance."

The second part of the book is taken up with short histories of the following families, the members of which have had much to do with whatever has concerned Alamance: Albright, Mebane, Holt, Foust, Clendenin, Lindley, Woody, Stafford, Cook, Puryear, Newlin, Trolinger and White.

The little volume cannot fail to interest and instruct all who may read it. It is written in a charming manner, the style being easy and graceful, and the events and incidents are well connected.

Miss Stockard is now in Greensboro in the interest of the book and will be pleased to supply all who may be interested with a copy.

The warehouses had fairly good sales of tobacco today.

THE NEGROES GOING NORTH.

RALEIGH HAS LOST ABOUT 250.

People Are Asking if Osborne and Jarvis Will Announce Their Candidacy--North Carolina Has 264 Cotton Mills, All of Them Running--Raleigh Man Killed in The Philippines.

Special Correspondence of The Telegram.

Raleigh, Aug. 31.—The weather bureau people say that the rains of Tuesday, Wednesday and yesterday were tolerably general. Last evening 1.59 inches fell here. Of course, much of some crops, corn, for example, is past redemption.

Now that three gentlemen, Messrs. Simmons, Carr, and Waddell, have made formal announcements of their candidacy for the Senate, the public is asking whether Messrs. Jarvis and Frank Osborne will give similar notice to their many friends in the State.

Democrats are heard to express great pleasure at the fact that in all probability Congressman Atwater will be renominated on the first ballot here September 6. During the campaign he made 95 speeches in the district.

A great many young shade trees here have been killed by the fierce heat. Most of these are maples. The great majority of property holders are very careless in protecting the sidewalk trees by boxing them or otherwise.

In the Sheriff's office yesterday a magistrate was greasing the rope which today will break the neck of Tom Jones the negro murderer. The latter has given to his lawyer a statement to be published before he dies, so he can see it in print. Jones in a confession says he was angry with his parmour, Ella Jones, because he thought she did not love him alone, that he went to her house and thought over the matter of killing her, as he sat by the fire quite a while before he got an axe, which he saw there, and killed her and her oldest daughter. He explained his failure to kill with the axe the other children by saying he forgot them. However, he set fire to the house and by that way destroyed four of them. If Jones' exccution were public at least 10,000 negroes would turn out to see him hanged.

It is said by business men here that the short crops will considerably reduce trade this fall. They estimate that the falling off in crops will be certainly 25 per cent. It seems that the corn crop is injured in the West, too, particularly in Kansas, and prices are apt to be higher. Far too many North Carolinians are corn buyers instead of producers.

Abe Middleton, the eminent Republican negro politician and campaign manager, arrived here today, with his gripsack, and this quickly gave rise to rumors that he had come to open Republican headquarters.

The State today chartered the Henderson Cotton Gin Company, capital $8,000.

The Secretary of State has completed the work of sending out the blanks, etc., for the November election.

Mention was made of the fact that all the companies of the State Guard save the one at Greenville had been armed and clothed. That company has not been fully equipped. It's probable that there will be a fine parade of the Guard at Governor Aycock's inauguration.

Last year during the smallpox scare in Johnston a railway employee was forced to remain in a house at Selma in which there was a case of smallpox. He was quarantined there and closely guarded. He sued the county for $10,000 damages. The suit was brought to Wake, but was removed to Johnston. It was today agreed that the legal proposition as to the county's liability for damages shall be taken to the Supreme Court on appeal and if that court decides that the county is liable the case will again be removed to Wake.

One Raleigh man has been killed in action in the Philippines. His name was Wyatt Hicks and he was in the 14th U. S. Infantry.

A railway agent here says that since June 1 he has sold 250 tickets to negroes going North to live, the great majority going to Massachusetts. He says that during the months of March, April and May he sold as many more. He does not include in this list negroes who went North to work temporarily. It is after all quite a little exodus.

The Agricultural Department's bulletin for August is out. It is an industrial number. It contains a register of cattle, horses, swine, sheep and poultry, with names and postoffices of owners. It also contains a list of 264 cotton mills, 16 wollen mills and 3 silk mills—a grand showing for North Carolina. Gaston heads the cotton mills, with 24, Alamance following with 20, while Cabarrus has 12, Mecklenburg 16, Randolph 14, Richmond 14, Cleveland 14, Cumberland 11, Guilford 12, Lincoln 12. All the 264 mills are in operation. There are other mills in less than 47 of the 97 counties. A list of miscellaneous industries is given.

President Winston, of the College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts, addressed the Convention of Southern Commissioners of Agriculture yesterday, on the subject of "Education of Farmers." He maintained the new industrial condition of the South demands,

First, universal education, with industrial features both agricultural and mechanical, enforced by compulsory laws requiring at least five years schooling of every child.

Second, high grade colleges, thoroughly equipped for technical instruction along all lines.

Third, national aid for industrial education in the public schools and for the training of public school teachers in normal colleges. He reviewed the industrial revolution that is going on in the South, manifesting itself in four directions: First, a change from large plantations to small farms, from extensive farming to intensive. Second, a change from ignorant slave labor to free labor. Third, increased transportation facilities producing world-competition.

Fourth, the growth of cities and towns with manufacturing populations, affording local markets for farm produce.

These changes demand the education of the Southern farmer along different lines from the ante-bellum planter. They demand public school systems, instead of private, the education of all instead of a few, practical education as well as theoretical. President Winston maintained that the real race question is the struggle between the white and black laborer on the Southern farms. If the negro has the character, the intelligence and the energy to meet the new conditions and maintain himself as a land owner and a small independent farmer, he will survive and prosper; otherwise he will go the way of all incompetents. He will neither be helped nor hindered much by legislation, but his future will depend upon himself.

HORSE KILLS HIMSELF.

Mr. Ragan is Nearly Run Over and Horse and Buggy Turned a Summersault.

High Point, Aug. 31—Yesterday about noon Mr. W. H. Ragan of this place was in his buggy near the Mt. Vernon Roller Mills coming towards home when he heard a noise in the rear of him. Imagine his feelings when he saw just a few feet from him a horse, pulling a buggy, coming towards him at a break neck speed. He immediately turned his horse from the main part of the road to give the affrighted steed right sway. However the runaway did not steer clear of Mr. Ragan's vehicle, but run the whole of the buggy it was pulling into that of Mr. Ragan's, knocking off the fenders, and shaking up his buggy. The horse kept up its pace until a ditch was reached when horse and buggy turned a complete somersault. The horse was instantly killed, his neck being broken in the fall. The buggy was a complete wreck. Mr. Ragan came out of the scramble unhurt. The ill-fated horse belonged to D. B. Bodenhomer, who lost his livery stable in the late fire here. He had left his horse in the road for a minute or so when it became frighted and runaway with the result as stated.

Mrs. J. J. Farriss, who has been at Hot Springs, detained there from sickness while on a visit with her husband, arrived home last night. She is quite sick.

The officers were looking for a negro yesterday who, it is claimed is in possession of a stolen bicycle.

The building in which the new laundry is to be located is undergoing repairs.

Quite a number of young folks enjoyed a hay ride to the farm of Mr. T. M. Picketts, near here, Wednesday night. They were treated in "at home" style by Mrs. Pickett. Nice fruits were served.

THE LIMIT PASSED.

One Scheme Which the Girl's Stern Parent Would Not Sanction.

"Please, mamma, please!"

"Papa, I beg of you do not refuse!"

Cordelia Pasdetout clung wildly about her fond but obdurate mother's neck and rained kisses upon her cheeks, while Anastasia, her sister, did likewise to her father.

But their pleading seemed of no avail. The elder Pasdetouts shook their gray heads firmly in negation, though it was evident that the necessity of refusing their daughters' request pained them beyond measure.

Gently, but with decision, as one shakes a hard shelled crab from out a scalp net, the parents disentangled their daughters' arms from their shoulders; then, mastering his emotions, the father said:

"No, Anastasia and Cordelia, what you ask of us is too much! Never before have we refused a request of yours. We have moved from city to city, from state to state, to the injury of my business and the destruction of your mother's health, in order to deceive people as to your ages. For the last ten years it has been nothing but move on for us, for every time the people of one place would begin to suspect your true ages you have insisted on us packing up and going elsewhere, that you might start anew at 22 and 23, respectively. We have submitted to this nomadic life for our love of you, but your most recent demand is too much. We absolutely refuse!"

The daughters sobbed like anything. In fact, they sobbed like everything.

But their firm parent remained firm.

"No," continued Mr. Pasdetout; "we will not, absolutely will not, celebrate our silver wedding again in order to prove to people that you two cannot be over 24 at the outside! The idea!"—Harper's Bazar.

A Couple of Shocks.

"Where have you been, Mr Rocky?" demanded the boss.

"Oh, sir," replied Rocky mendaciously, "my landlady is a most excellent woman, and she has been so ill that I had to stay at home to nurse her."

This excuse went, and the boss turned away. The following day Rocky felt like he had sand in his head, and a headache as long as a rainy Sunday in the country developed. He staid at home, sending the excuse that his landlady was dead and he had to attend the funeral. Later in the day a woman entered the bookstore and inquired for Mr. Rocky.

"The reason I came here," she explained, "is because I am his landlady, and not having seen him for a week I became uneasy and called to inquire about him."

"His landlady!" gasped the boss. "Why, woman, he's attending your funeral this very day and has been nursing you for a week."

It was a shock to the poor woman to find she was dead, but a shock of another sort struck Rocky when he came back to work. It was his funeral that time.—Louisville Times.

A DAY IN COURT.

One who never spent a day in the court house during a term of the Superior Court of Guilford county has missed a great deal, especially if he be able to appreciate life in the many unique and varying forms in which it may be observed in the temple of justice. There men, and women, too, of all conditions and stages of life may be seen on all sorts of missions.

It is during the hearing of the State docket that the student of human nature and life in all its colorings wants to betake himself to the court house and join the conglomeration of humanity that finds a resting place there. It is a changing, shifting scene; but always interesting. The idle spectator, the multitude of witnesses and the dejected prisoners, the alert lawyers and the tired jurors, all under the calm survey of the staid judge, form a picture both grotesque and picturesque.

Following the court officer's sonorous "Oyez! Oyez! Oyez!" court is declared open, the minutes of the previous day's session are read, and the jury is sworn and empanelled to try such causes as may come before it that day.

When the clerk has been asked for the papers in a certain case the vigilant solicitor arises and says: "May it please Your Honor, the defendant, John Brown, is indicted in the usual form for carrying concealed weapons, to-wit: a pair of brass knucks." Or it may be for the larceny of a half dozen guinea eggs that some justice of the peace has bound the luckless defendant over to court. After the prisoner's customary denial of guilt, the State's witnesses, probably seven or eight in number, are called and sworn and the taking of evidence is begun. The charge having been proved beyond cavil, the defendant and his witnesses are given an opportunity to disprove everything that may have been sworn by the witnesses on the other side. Impassioned pleadings by counsel follow, and after a brief charge by the judge, the jury retires to deliberate and make up a verdict. After a time the defendant is either convicted or acquitted, as the case may be. Probably half a day's time has been consumed and a hundred or more of the country's good hard dollars spent, but the State and society have been assured of protection.

And so it goes throughout the days of the term. Cases are called, witnesses examined, speeches made, and prisoners convicted or acquitted. Money is spent, and plenty of it, but the mill keeps grinding. The grist may sometimes be malice and hatred, envy and revenge; the output sorrow and sadness, misery and woe. But wrongs must be righted and society protected from the encroachments of those who would destroy and pull down.

* * * *

When the criminal docket has been cleared the court takes up the tedious, dry and uninteresting work of disposing of civil actions. The court room takes on almost a deserted appearance, for there is nothing in the proceedings to attract the idle and curious. The lawyers read long complaints and make obtuse arguments, the jurors look bored, and the judge may appear to enjoy himself.

* * * *

An old-timer is forced to the conclusion that court in Greensboro is not what it used to be. In former years people from the surrounding country came to town in great numbers. They came in wagons and buggies and on horseback. They brought rations for man and beast and camped on vacant lots, spending the greater part of the week. Some brought chickens, eggs and butter which they traded at the stores of the town for cash or barter. Others brought hard cider, and not a few corn whiskey and apple brandy, which was dealt out either by the pint or drink.

There was always a roomy lot sacred to the horse traders, and this was often the most interesting spot in town. It was sometimes called, and not without reason, "the bone-yard." Here the lovers of horse-flesh gathered and traded on "plugs" of doubtful age and qualities. Most of the swappers were there for the mere pleasure of trading, and often cared not what manner of horse they got in exchange. But the traders were always there by a large majority.

Trees and Land.

Do not buy land on which the trees are small and of not very thick growth. You will see that men who are experienced in buying farming land always go on this principle. Land thickly covered with timber indicates good land, where the trees are scattered and not very tall indicates poor land.

THE PROTECTING WING.

"Three times during the past few months," says the Reidsville Review, "the Sugar Trust has raised the price of sugar. The grocery stores and poor consumers have paid the advance without a murmur. They have no protection and they knew it was useless to complain. It has been learned, however, that at the present schedule of prices foreign sugars can enter this market at a profit. But the Sugar Trust must have protection or Republican principles will all be violated. Foreign sugar must not be allowed to enter our markets. It would hurt Havemeyer. Therefore, trot out the tariff, that fine old mother of trusts and let her protecting wings hover over the head of the sugar king."

Without investigating, we presume that our contemporary is correct in its statement that the price of sugar has been raised three times during the past few months. That, however, is not what we wish to speak of, but of the influence of the tariff or other special privilege legislation in the production of monopoly. If it is true that at the present prices foreign sugar could enter this market at a profit, then the Sugar Trust is not a complete monopoly, but is in competition with foreign producers. It may be an unequal competition, but competition none the less. But let the government interfere and increase the tariff, and competition is shut off. The Sugar Trust has then become a monopoly by special legislation, and the great body of the American citizens is denied the privilege of buying where they could buy cheapest. In this way our government is the instrument by which we punish ourselves. In this way the tariff is the "mother of trusts," because protection itself is an open effort to produce the monopoly in this country of an article in which competition is offered from abroad. Some economists are of the opinion that mere mass of capital cannot produce monopoly, but that the latter is, outside of natural monopolies, absolutely dependent upon favoritism in legislation. To such extent as this is true, to that extent may the trusts be controlled by legislation, always provided the subtile will of the trust is not more powerful upon the politician than is the will of the people.

With our brother of the Tribune we would be pleased to know the reason why the birth of the little Vanderbilt at Biltmore was regarded as of sufficient importance to be telegraphed all over the world. Thousands have been born this year in North Carolina just as pretty, just as bright, just as red, and who could cry just like she does.—Concord Times.

But, esteemed, the others are not heirs to millions or to Biltmorehouses, which makes quite a distinguishing feature for a North Carolina baby. It is not the points of similarity, but of dissimilarity, which makes the valuable news feature which the hustling newsgatherer is going after all the time.

Our contemporary, the Statesville Landmark, contributes a history of North Carolina politics of the last four years that might make some folks squirm if they were not case hardened.

If there are any more gentlemen waiting to go into the senatorial handicap we are ready to hear from them.

EXONORATED BUT NOT UNHUNG.

On Tuesday, at Forest City, Rutherford county, in some kind of a fight, a white man, Mr. Flack, was killed by a negro, Avery Mills. The negro lived on Mr. Flack's land and the facts concerning the shooting were not well known. The negro was immediately arrested and started off to jail. On the way a mob overtook the officers and, releasing the negro, shot him to death. The killing occurred at nine o'clock in the morning, and at noon the negro was shot by the mob.

It has since developed, by the statement of Flack's own son, that the former shot the negro first, chased him, and broke a shot gun over his head. By this time the negro had gotton a pistol somehow, and fired upon Flack, killing him.

So the poor negro, who fought for his own life, is exonorated. He remains, however, in the uncomfortable position of not having yet been unlynched.

Brethren, the mob must not rule; it must be punished.

thus come looked out and saw the burning house. Others saw it and hurried there, but could do nothing, as there was only a glowing flame. At dawn, amid the ashes, two bodies, or parts of them, were found and some skulls and bones. The coroner arrived early. Before he came the murderer had been arrested, for at 3 o'clock a neighbor had gone to the house of Tom Jones, known among the negroes as "Preacher" because of his habit of praying and exhorting, had found Jones in bed and beside the bed his bloody overalls, from which he had vainly tried with soot to remove the tell-tale blood stains.

The murderer was brought to the ruins of the house, and there were the little children, the sole survivors of a family of eight. Laura was asked to point out the murderer. She pointed straight at Jones and said "Mr. Preacher, he's the man." Jones was asked what he had to say and replied, "nothing." The jury required but a few moments to decide he was the murderer, after they had heard Laura's testimony. She said that about 9 o'clock the night before Jones had come to their home, that they were in bed; that she was awakened by hearing her mother scream; that she saw Jones strike her mother with an axe; that he struck her four times; that the bloo dflew on the children and on her; that then he killed her sister Ida, 12 years old, with two blows of the axe; that he put the axe under a bed and set fire to the two beds and left; that she seized Sid and slipped out of the house; that four children were burned to death, these being Jessie, aged 5; Nancy, 3; Clever, 2; and the baby, aged a month."

It was found that Jones, who was a farm hand, had for some time been living unlawfully with Ella Jones, the woman; that the baby was his own; that the woman had told him she intended to swear its paternity; that then he had planned to murder her and destroy the whole family and had killed the only two he thought able to leave the cabin.

NEGROES WANTED TO LYNCH HIM.

Jones was brought to Raleigh and jailed. Feeling against him on the part of the negroes was intense, and they wanted to lynch him, though they made no attempt to do so. He was tried in May and promptly convicted of murder in the first degree. The only defense was that he was of unsound mind, a religious fanatic in fact, and that he killed the woman and children because he thought his relations with her, revealed by her suit, would upset his religious standing. He appealed to the Supreme Court for a new trial. Pending the hearing by that court he made a full confession. The higher court sustained the court below. Gov. Russell named today as the date for the execution. The gallows was built in a little enclosure in the rear of the jail. Jones last Sunday had a prayer meeting for his fellow prisoners. He prayed that angels would come to the gallows and take his soul to Heaven. Monday he was baptized a Roman Catholic.

How Br'er Rabbit Beat Br'er Fox.

One day Br'er Fox was hungry. As he wandered about the woods he saw a squirrel upon the branch of a tall tree. "Hello, Br'er Squirrel!" he said. "Hello, Br'er Fox!" replied the squirrel.

Then said Brer Fox: "I once had a brother who could jump from limb to limb." "So can I," replied Br'er Squirrel. "Let me see you," said the fox. So the squirrel jumped from limb to limb.

"Br'er Squirrel, I have a brother who can jump from tree to tree." "I can too." So Br'er Squirrel jumped from tree to tree.

"Br'er Squirrel, I had a brother who could jump from the top of a tall tree right into my arms." "I can too." And he did. Br'er Fox ate him all up.

Br'er Rabbit was lying in his bed near by and saw all that was done. "Br'er Fox," said he, "your a mighty smart man, but I had a brother who could do something you cannot do."

"What was it?" said Br'er Fox.

"My brother could let anybody tie a large rock around his neck and jump off this bridge into the water and swim out." "So can I," said the fox. Then Br'er Rabbit fixed the rock and the string, and Br'er Fox jumped, but he has not been heard of since.—American Folk Lore.

Plants That Bear Jewels.

One of the directors of Kew gardens, lecturing at the London institute on some curiosities of tropical plant life, said that among these were the pearls found occasionally in the cocoanut palm of the Philippine Islands—pearls which, like those of the ocean, are composed of carbonate of lime. The bamboo, too, yields another precious product in the shape of true opals, which are found in its joints.

Nature's Winter Storage.

As the result of 29 years of experiments at Rothamsted, England, it is shown that in the winter months more than half of the amount of rain that falls penetrates into the soil and becomes available for the supply of springs, while in the summer only one-quarter of the rainfall is absorbed by the soil. The maximum quantity of water in the soil is at a depth of about 40 inches.

is where we stand in the lumber business. At the kicking post, as it were, in regard to prices.

First comes the owner of the timber. He just woke up to the value of it and wants double last year's prices. Then the sawmill man. He has not been making a fortune and thinks now he should share a little in the general prosperity

They say to us: "We must have so much for our trees and work." After a while it is "up to you." Don't kick. You don't suppose we have nerve enough to put up prices unless they had first been put up on us. No, indeed. But prices are NOT high. They have been to low and are just now getting reasonable. Your children will be glad to build at double the price it now costs you. It is a trite, but true saying, if you want to build, "Now is the time."

are making a terrific onslaught on prices of Shoes, Dry Goods, Clothing, Gent's Furnishings, Notions, etc. We make it a practice never to carry over fabrics from season to season. We must make room for our fall goods at once; hence from now on you will think that Uncle Sam's entire army has invaded this section. for it will be BANG, BANG, BANG, continually. No such thing as let up. We intend to make quick work of it. The war on high prices and big profits is a just one and our victorious BANNER OF LOW PRICES proudly waves over this territory. Not even the rainy season, cold or hot weather, has any tendency to impede the progress of the vast army of trading people that are constantly pouring into our store. We bring them down at either short or long range. Why it is the cry on every hand, going to the CHEAPEST STORE ON EARTH. It is no wonder. We do what we promise and promise only what we do. My! listen: Dimity 2½c; Lawns 2½c; Overalls 25c; Piques, Organdies and Lawns, at prices never before heard of; Good bleaching 5c; Barker Mills bleaching 6¼c; Best 5c sock on the market.

Everything Cheap!

A Kansas Man's Feelings Hurt at Sea.

Kansas City Journal.

A Kansas man, en route to the Paris Exposition, declares that the only time he ever really lost his nerve was when the sailors on his ship commenced to load up the lifeboats with water and biscuits. He says he didn't know that this was done once a week in order to have the boats always in readiness, and felt sure a great storm was coming that would swamp them all.

"I was scared and asked the captain about it," he says, "and the captain laughed at me. That made me mad. These captains put on too much dog, anyway. There isn't one of them that could tell the difference between a self-binder and a straw stacker."

McSweeney Ahead of Hoyt.

Columbia, S C., Aug. 30.—On the returns from about 76,000 votes and with 4,000 or 5,000 to hear from, Governor McSweeney leads in the race for Governor by about 3,000 votes over Col. James A. Hoyt, the Prohibition candidate. It is expected that all returns from yesterday's primary will be in by tomorrow night. Senator Tillman, with no opposition, returns to the United States Senate. He is running considerably behind his ticket.

$148,000 Sea Wall for Caswell.

Wilmington. Aug. 30. — Contracts were awarded today by the War Department for furnishing and transporting stone to build a $148,000 sea wall around Fort Caswell, to protect it against encroachment by the ocean. W. R. Bonsal & Co., of Hamlet, were the successful bidders. They will deliver here 7,000 tons of large stone and 6,000 broken. W. A. Sanders, of Wilmington, gets the contract for transporting the stone to Caswell.

A Cyclone That Was Worse Than the Bombardment.

Mafeking, Aug. 30.—A cyclone that visited the Mafeking last evening did more damage than seven months' bombardment. It blew down or unroofed numerous buildings and leveled the military camp hospital, causing much suffering among the sick and wounded. One persons was killed and two were injured, and there were many narrow escapes.

Makes Brave Men Cowards.

It has been proved that the comparatively harmless bombarding, so far as wounds are concerned, of a besieged town is terribly demoralizing to the bravest men.

When a shell bursts near a group of 20 men it may kill one and wound two, while the remaining 17 escape without a scratch. It will be found, however, that many of these are never the same men again. No matter how iron nerved they were before, they are now irresolute and timid, and all their faculties are weakened. Very often they are jeered at by their comrades because of this change. But this is utterly unjust in fact, their brain and spinal cord have been injured by being violently shaken against the walls of their bony cavities.

The same thing occurs in railway collisions. People who were robust become quite feeble and nervous, though they may not have received a scratch.

This curious state in the case of soldiers is well recognized by doctors under the name of the mental injuries of explosives. The injuries are really quite as physical as a shattered leg, for they consist of a kind of bruising of the very delicate tissue of the spinal cord and brain.

Her Timely Gift.

In common with other women, Mrs. Brown delights in a bargain, and when she observed the advertisement of a great fire and water sale in one of the department stores she repaired there without delay. There were many fine works of science, travel, history, religion and fiction to be had for a song each, but her eyes rested on a handsomely bound copy of "The Life of General Grant," and she bought it for her brother. Of course, it would not be fair to tell what she paid for it.

"The next day her brother came over to thank her. "It's fine," he said. "I haven't got very far in it yet, but I know it's going to be good. When little Jane gets along a little further in her German I'm going to have her read me a bit of it every evening. I make rather slow progress of it myself."

"In German?" gasped the giver.

"Yes," said the brother, "it's written in German, a mighty handy thing to have around the house." Since then Mrs. Brown has never bought a fire or water book without looking carefully on the inside of it.—Worcester (Mass.) Gazette.

Rubens received for his painting of the grand ceiling in the banqueting house, Whitehall, the sum of $20,000. The space covered by this painting is about 400 yards, so that he was paid nearly $50 a yard.

VIOLIN AND SONG.

He'd nothing but his violin,
I'd nothing but my song,
But we were wed when skies were blue
And summer days were long.
And when we rested by the hedge
The robins came and told
How they had dared to woo and win
When early spring was cold.
We sometimes supped on dewberries
Or slept among the hay,
But oft the farmers' wives at eve
Came out to hear us play
The rare old tunes, the dear old tunes;
We could not starve for long,
While my man had his violin
And I my sweet love song.

The world has aye gone well with us,
Old man, since we were one;
Our homeless wandering down the lanes,
It long ago was done.
But those who wait for gold or gear,
For houses and for kine,
Till youth's sweet spring grows brown and sear
And love and beauty tine
Will never know the joy of hearts
That met without a fear
When you had but your violin
And I a song, my dear.

A FALSE ALARM.

It Came at a Most Inopportune Time For the Pretty Angler.

"And it all came from a little, petty, miserable, insignificant, nickel plated alarm clock that cost me just 69 cents at a bargain sale!" exclaimed the pretty girl in blue, with flashing eyes, to her sympathetic friend. "I haven't the slightest idea why I bought it unless it was because it was so cheap, for goodness knows I didn't need it! But buy it I did and carried it home, where I bragged of my bargain all the rest of the day. It wouldn't run more than half the time, and finally I turned it over to my little sister to play with.

"You know the time I have had with that eligible young man and how I have quarreled with every girl friend I know who has dared to look at him? But you don't know how many nights I have wasted sitting up planning a campaign that would be successful!

"Well, he called the other evening, and I served notice on the rest of the family that we wanted the drawing room to ourselves that evening, for I felt sure that the supreme moment had arrived. I wasn't disappointed. We were sitting side by side on a divan, quite by accident, looking at some engravings when he began, and I tried to look as if I was awfully surprised. But he hadn't spoken more than three words before that miserable alarm clock went off right under us, where my little sister had left it when she was through playing with it.

"From the way the young man jumped you would have thought that he was a part of the alarm and always acted that way when the alarm was sprung. He made for the door, mumbling something that I didn't catch on account of the noise that the alarm made, and he was outdoors before the din ceased and gave me a chance to collect my wits. And to think that it was all caused by a little, miserable, petty"— The pretty girl in blue gave it up and burst out crying.—Detroit Free Press.

Poor Shots.

All the principal correspondents at the front, among them Mr. Burleigh, Mr. Villiers, the war artist; The Daily News and The Times Mafeking correspondents as well as Sir Howard Vincent have testified to the poor shooting in unmistakable terms. Mr. Villiers' experience was a particularly striking one. While asleep in his Cape cart on the veldt he was ineffectually potted at 100 yards off by three gentlemen in khaki, who mistook him for a Boer farmer. As he tersely puts it, "I never felt anywhere so safe as when under my countrymen's fire." An analysis of the "withering rifle fire of the British advance" shows that in very few instances was a Boer hit more than once, while many of our men had several Mauser bullets through them, in some instances as many as 12 and 13. English as well as foreign doctors in Boer hospitals report that almost all the wounded Boers have come to their injuries by artillery fire. Dr. von Gernet states "that the British rifle fire is almost quite without effect," which, if the instances I can cite of regulars who were hurried to the front who had never fired a service rifle in their lives be at all general, can hardly rouse surprise.—Nineteenth Century.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED.

Yes, August Flower still has the largest sale of any medicine in the civilized world. Your mothers and grandmothers never thought of using anything else for indigestion or biliousness. Doctors were scarce, and they seldom heard of appendicitis, nervous prostration or heart failure, etc. They used August Flower to clean out the system and stop fermentation of undigested food, regulate the action of the liver, stimulate the nervous and organic action of the system, and that is all they took when feeling dull and bad with headaches and othaches. You only need a few doses of Green's August Flower, in liquid form, to moke you satisfied there is nothing serious the matter with you. For sale by Grissom & Fordham.

The Winning Manner In Which Bill Steritt Handled a Demand For Increased Pay by the Force on the Old Dallas Times.

There are ways and ways of settling labor strikes. The unions have used the "sympathetic strike" plan, at times securing a settlement by calling out the forces of allied trades. With the "bosses" the lockout frequently has done the business. But there are methods of erasing differences between employers and employees which even Chicago has overlooked. Strikes have been settled by the bosses joining the ranks of the strikers, voluntarily assuming the posts of walking delegates, directing the movements of the striking army and dictating the time when difficulties were declared off.

Proof of the power of this method was furnished during the days of the old Dallas Times. That Texas city was but a struggling town then, with a population that was getting close up to the 2,000 mark. The editorial helm of The Times had just been seized by William Steritt, better known in Washington's and Texas' newspaper world today as plain "Bill" Steritt, the title "colonel" frequently being prefixed in recognition of his birthplace, Kentucky.

The Times under the Steritt regime employed five men and one woman in its manufacture. The latter was the wife of the foreman of the printing room and worked at the "cases," while the "printer's devil" performed double duty by acting as the motive power of the hand press. The foreman during his younger days had had an argument with a mule, and the scars of that battle which decorated his face had aided in securing his reputation of being "a bad man in a mixup." Shortly after the new hand press had begun the molding of editorials and the sharing of subscription donations ranging from garden truck to overworked farm stock uneasiness lodged in The Times office. Rumors of labor troubles and of union organization were heard.

"We've concluded to quit," said the foreman as he stalked into the editor's sanctum one morning backed up by the entire mechanical force. "We don't get union pay, and we've organized a chapel. If you don't show up more money, your paper don't get out, that's all."

"Going to strike, are you?" queried Steritt, who had not found promises of a direct road to wealth and Wall street through The Times. "Unionized, are you? Well, sir, I'm glad to hear it. I've been thinking for some days of going on a strike myself. The circulation of this concern isn't extremely feverish, and none of the subscribers will ever miss us, and if they do it will be to our benefit. The few blocks of white paper out there will keep, and I guess the hand press won't object to a day off. Yes, sir, we'll strike right here and now. We'll just walk around the corner and celebrate the inauguration of this 'walkout' with a drink."

The foreman's wife here transferred her share of arbitration power on the masculine contingent and departed. The quintet expressed some surprise at the turn of affairs, but followed Steritt to the corner saloon, where three rounds of drinks were put away under his direction.

"You see," began the foreman, "we're ready to go right back to work now if you'll pay"—

"No, sir-ee," broke in the editor. "Why, we've just struck, and I couldn't call things off now. Hold on, I tell you, and we'll win out."

The Times office was closed up, the windows nailed down and the office cat turned loose to forage. On the fourth day the foreman approached Steritt and sounded him as to the advisability of declaring the strike at an end.

"Can't do it," was the answer. "Why, I'm having the best time of my life. Hang out, and we'll win, I tell you. If I could find another union around here, we would have one of those sympathetic affairs. Nop; the strike's not off, and I hereby issue another pronunciamento to that end. Besides that, the people are beginning to find out they need a paper. I'm in this strike for subscribers."

Then they liquored several times, and the foreman left.

On the ninth day the striking army of five conferred with the self appointed walking delegate. They contended that they were ready to resume their end of the work of shaping public opinion at the old schedule of weekly pay. Steritt was obdurate and advised further hostilities for several days. On the fourteenth day he was called on to accept a most sweeping capitulation. The next day the hand press began its grind, the foreman, who had not lived up to his reputation as a "bad man," took his wife and his followers back to the "cases," and Steritt continued the work of gathering "items" and building editorials. At the close of the day's work the force was summoned to the office.

"Next time," advised the editor, "you don't want to stop when you've organized a 'chapel. You want to go ahead and organize and build a whole cathedral. That's all."—Chicago Tribune.

PAYING FOR A MEAL.

It Was Worth a Shilling to Pick Those Bones.

Colonel Ebenezer Sproat, of Revolutionary fame, was born and bred in Middleboro, Mass. He was always fond of a joke and was quick to seize an opportunity to indulge his propensity, as the following incident, related by Dr. Hildreth, well illustrates. His father, also a Colonel Sproat, kept a tavern. One day while Ebenezer was at home on a furlough three private soldiers, on their return from the seat of war, called for a cold luncheon.

Mrs. Sproat set on the table some bread and cheese with the remnants of the family dinner, which her son thought rather scanty fare for hungry men. He felt a little vexed that the defenders of the country were not more bountifully supplied. The soldiers, after satisfying their appetites, asked him how much they should pay. Ebenezer said he would ask his mother. He found her in the kitchen.

"Mother," he said, "how much is it worth to pick those bones?"

"About a shilling, I guess," she answered.

The young officer returned to the soldiers, and, taking from the barroom till 3 shillings and smiling genially upon them, gave each man one and with good wishes sent them on their way. Mrs. Sproat soon after came in and asked Ebenezer what he had done with the money for the soldiers' dinner.

In apparent amazement he exclaimed: "Money! Did I not ask you what it was worth to pick those bones, and you said a shilling? I thought it little enough, for the bones were pretty bare, and I handed the men the money from the till, and they are gone."

Mrs. Sproat could not find heart to reprove her favorite son for this misinterpretation of her words, and then she, too, loved a joke, and so, after an instant's glum look, she laughed and said it was all right.—Youth's Companion.

PREVENTED A TRAGEDY.

Timely information given Mrs. George Long, of New Straitsville, O., prevented a dreadful tragedy and saved two lives. A frightful cough had kept her awake every night. She tried many remedies and doctors but steadily grew worse until urged to try Dr. King's New Discovery. One bottle cured her, and she writes this marvelous medicine also cured Mr. Long of a severe attack of pneumonia. Such cures are positive proof of the matchless merit of this grand remedy for curing all throat, chest and lung troubles. Only 50c and $1.00. Every bottle guaranteed. Trial bottles free at C. E. THE WEATHER.

For North Carolina: Generally fair tonight and Saturday. Light north to east winds.

Highest temperature at Greensboro past twenty-four hours ending eight o'clock this morning 84, lowest 68; rainfall .08.

AROUND TOWN.

A Brief Summary of Happenings in the First City of the State.

There will be preaching at Westminster church tonight at 8 o'clock and again tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock.

The officers have recovered Mr. Julian Price's wheel, which was stolen by an unknown negro a few days ago. The negro rode it to High Point. He has not been apprehended.

There will be a Woman's Missionary meeting at Washington Street church tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock. Miss Heck, of Raleigh, will be present and make a talk. The ladies of the other churches are cordially invited.

A number of editors passed through the city oday returning home from the annual meeting of the State Press Association at Asheville. Among them were Messrs. D. J. Whichard and Henry T. King, of Greenville and Z. W. Whitehead, of Wilmington.

The public is cordially invited to attend a lecture by Mrs. T. G. Cozart, in the Sunday school room of West Market Street church this evening at 8 o'clock. Mrs. Cozart is State secretary of the Y. W. C. T. U. and is deeply interested in her work.

In the case of J. R. Wall vs. Reuben Cole, tried in the Superior Court, the jury returned a verdict in favor of the defendant. Mr. Wall built a house for Cole and sued for $275 due in payment for the same.

INTEREST INCREASING.

The Revival at Westminister Being Attended by Large Crowds.

The interest in the meeting being conducted at Westminster continues to increase. The large congregations are delighted with Mr. Little's earnest gospel sermons. He presents the truth as it is in Jesus in an interesting, practical and impressive way.

The attendance last night was the largest since the meeting opened, and the attention given to the sermon was unusually close. At the close of the sermon three remained for the inquiry meeting.

The subject which was presented in such a forceful and interesting way at last night's service was, "Hindrances to a Christian Life, and How to Overcome Them." The discourse was based upon the experience of Zacchaeus as recorded in the 19th chapter of Luke

The subject of this morning's sermon was, "The Constant Condition of Discipleship," the text being Luke 14:27, "And whosoever doth not bear his cross, and come after me, cannot be my disciple."

Tonight at 8 o'clock Mr. Little will preach a sermon on "Sin—its Character and its Cure." The subject of the sermon tomorrow morning will be, "The Duty of the Church Member to the Unsaved, and How to Perform It."

While these services are being held in the Presbyterian church, members of all the other churches of the city are most coadially invited to attend and to take part in the services.

A Family Outing.

Mr. W. H. Wetmore and family left this morning on a visit to Salisbury, traveling by private conveyance through the country. They left at 5 o'clock this morning and expected to make the trip by easy stages.

Another Donation to the Firemen.

The L. Richardson Drug Company has sent Chief Taylor a check for $25 for the firemen in appreciation of the excellent work done by them at Wednesday's fire. This is a commendable way of showing appreciation, and is very encouraging to the members o the Fire Department.

Among the institutions which do not, as a rule, know the value of systematic, extensive and persistent newspaper advertising are insurance companies, banking houses and some other financial concerns. Many life insurance companies send out their agents to persuade people to take out policies, but neglect newspaper advertising, which would reach thousands who are never approached by a solicitor. Some time an enterprising company will make the fullest use of the newspaper columns and demonstrane the economy of the process.
